Dear parents and carers,

It's nice to be back in touch with you all again this week. Hoping everyone remains safe and well.

Having been in to school this week, preparing paper resource packs, it was so quiet and empty without you all and just emphasised how much we miss seeing you.

A busy first week back for us teachers. It been lovely to see the children all engaging so beautifully with the work being set and sharing your experiences/ activities. Really great positivity being shown. We are so grateful for all the support and patience being shown by you, the parents, in helping your children navigate their way through these tricky times. You are all doing a brilliant job, and we are very touched by the lovely messages and photos we receive from you all.

We continue to use Seesaw as a key communication tool, and would urge as many of you as possible to continue to share pictures of work and of the children through it as it is an easy tool, even if your children are doing the majority of their work on paper based resources. You can also share and communicate using emails to your child's class teachers, and if you could try to do this weekly, if only very quickly, we would find that very helpful in keeping the lines of communication going and in supporting you all.

We will be starting to use more videos of us teachers on Seesaw and email to share learning with the children as we believe it will be good for the children to see familiar faces, and we can so some direct teaching more effectively by personal posts of this nature. Your children can respond on the Seesaw journal or by email with questions/ follow up.

Some of you may have seen our lovely Jack in the News over Easter, planting and distributing sunflower seeds around the village as a symbol of hope. What a lovely gesture of kindness. We were so proud of Jack demonstrating such care and thoughtfulness for others.

Read about it here if you missed it ;

You should have now received your child's Spring Learning Reviews, via email. Any comments or questions arising should be directed to your child's Class teachers, via their email. It was delightful to read them all and see what super learners we have, and what great learning has been taking place.

In such unusual times, we could all do with a bit of mindfulness—please see tips and hints here—

Have an enjoyable and safe weekend.

Thursday 23rd April My favourite painting -

I chose this picture
This picture is illustrated by Robert Delaunay.
I chose this picture because it has a lot of bright colours and a lot of geometric shapes.
I believe that this is a picture of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, France.
This painting is of the Eiffel Tower, but it looks exactly like the Eiffel Tower but with a variation of colours.
The last looks like it's coming out of the page - this is characteristic of the cubist movement.

Renoir was born in 1841. His full name was Pierre-Auguste Renoir. He was a son of a tailor and lived in Paris from when he was 5. Renoir earned money to study art by painting blinds, murals etc. As a teenager Renoir became an apprentice to a porcelain painter and this is where he learned to copy designs to decorate plates and other dishes. Around 1867 Renoir met Lisa Tréhot. The pair were full in love. They even had a daughter! Renoir died in 1919 at Cagnes. Here are some of his paintings:

Impressionism

1860-1890

Impressionism began in 1860 and was popular in the 19th and 20th centuries. Impressionism was a movement in art that was interested in capturing the light and color of the world around them. They were not interested in painting the world as it was, but as it appeared to them. They were interested in the way that light and color changed throughout the day. They were interested in the way that the world appeared to them at different times of the day. They were interested in the way that the world appeared to them at different times of the day.
